

Context: Ron started his new job as a landscaper today.

He loves the outdoors and has always enjoyed working in it.

His boss tells him to re-sod the front yard of the mayor's home.

Ron is ecstatic, but does a thorough job and finishes super early.

Right ending: His boss commends him for a job well done.

Wrong ending: Ron is immediately fired for insubordination.

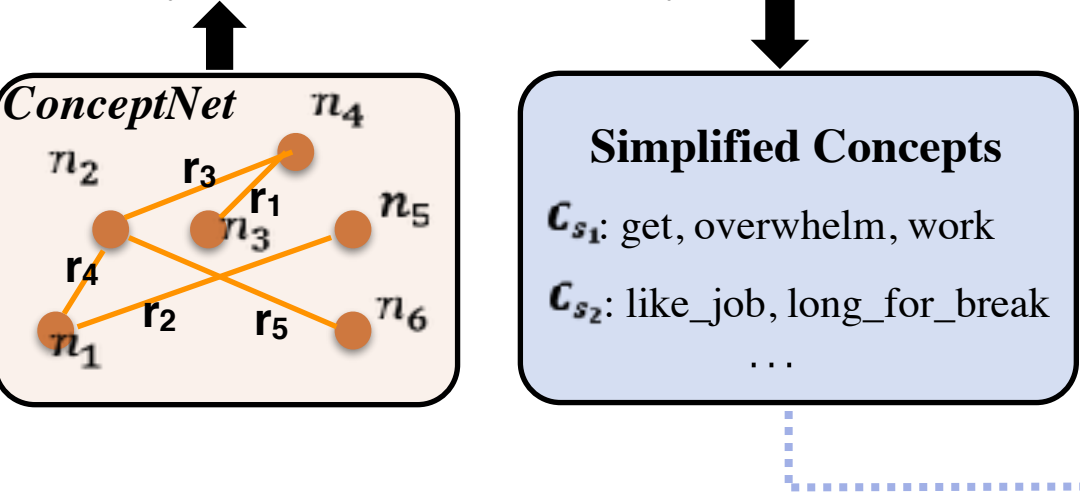

he longed for a break.	One day, she tripped outside on uneven pavement.	She broke her ankle and had to be off work for a couple months.	Tiffany went in to work the next da
------------------------	--	---	-------------------------------------

Context: Tiffany was getting overwhelmed at work.
While she liked her job, she longed for a break.
One day, she tripped outside on uneven pavement.
She broke her ankle and had to be off work for a couple months.
Right ending: She was in pain but happy to not have to go to work.
Wrong ending: Tiffany went in to work the next day.

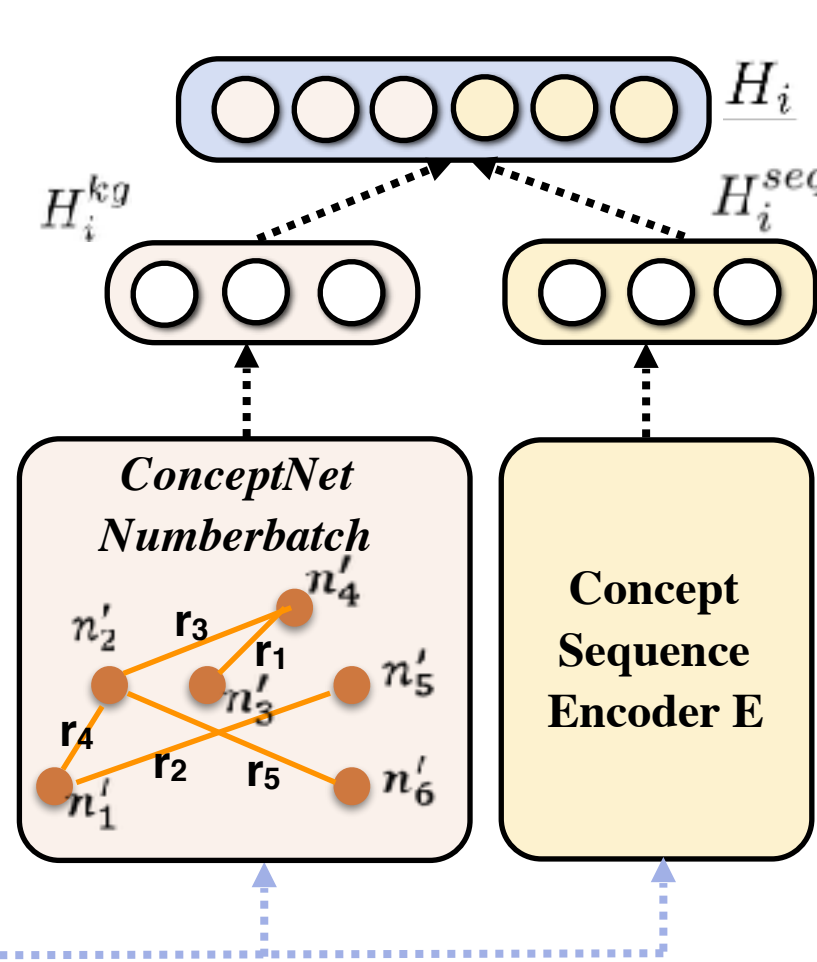

Context: Tiffany was getting overwhelmed at work.
While she liked her job, she longed for a break.
One day, she tripped outside on uneven pavement.
She broke her ankle and had to be off work for a couple months.
Right ending: She was in pain but happy to not have to go to work.
Wrong ending: Tiffany went in to work the next day.

Step 1: Sentence simplification

- s_1 : Tiffany was getting overwhelmed at work.
- s_2 : While she liked her job, she longed for a break.
- s_3 : One day, she tripped outside on uneven pavement.
- s_4 : She broke her ankle and had to be off work for a couple months.
- e_1 : She was in pain but happy to have a rest.
- e_2 : Tiffany went in to work the next day.

Step 2: Sentence representation

Step 3: Ending prediction

